ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of The Bedford County Sabbath School Association

HELD AT FISHERTOWN.

Important Topics Discussed—Overflow Meetings—Officers Elected and Committees Appointed.

One of the most interesting, inspiring and best attended conventions in the history of its organization was that of the Bedford County Sabbath School association, which convened in the Lutheran church at Fishertown, Thursday morning, June 15 Promptly at 9:30 the president, J. T. Painter, of Hopewell, called the convention to order. A song and praise service was conducted by Rev. John Horning. Rev. H. B. Schroeder, pastor of the church in which the convention was held, made the address of welcome. It was responded to in a very kindly manner by the president of the association.

The question, "What do I need in my Sunday school?" was opened by Dr. Lang secretary of the Philadelphia County association, and further discussed by Rev. Horning. Owing to the much crowded condition of the church and being assured that the Hicksite Friends' church would seat more people, the convention voted to hold the afternoon session in that church, after which the convention adjourned till 2 p. m, Rev. B. F. Bausman pronouncing the benediction.

The afternoon session was opened with a song service led by Rev. Sigmund. W. S. Lysinger, of Bedford, conducted the devotional exercises The subject, "The parent and the Sunday school," was assigned to Rev. Sigmund. The great importance of example and co-operation of parents in connection with the Sunday school was fully demonstrated by him. Other thoughts were added by Rev. Horning and Dr. Lang. The question, "Does the Sunday school educate and elevate? If so, on what lines?" was ably discussed by Harry Shuck, of Colorado, formerly a Bedford county boy. It was further discussed by Rev. Sigmund and Rev. Lamberson.

The following committees were announced by the president: On resolutions, Rev. John Horning, W. S. Lysinger and Rev. J D. Miller; on nomination, Capt. I. K Little, A. C. Blackburn and Miss Isabel Pettigrew; on finances, Rev. E. L. Kennedy, Miss Cooper and Miss Henry; on enrollment, Miss Grace Blattenberger, Miss Mame Gates and Rev. Sigmund.

Miss Maude Baumgardner gave a very helpful and interesting talk on the topic, "Bringing the child in touch with the Book." Rev. A A. Hilleary and Rev. Sigmund also spoke on the topic. "Wherein is a Sunday school a success? Wherein a failure?" was ably discussed by Rev. Horning. Capt. Little, Rev. Miller, Mr. Lysinger, Rev J Gulden and Prof. Painter spoke on the subject.

The convention deemed it proper to use the Friends' church for an overflow meeting at the evening session. At 6:30 Miss Baumgardner gave an instructive talk on "Primary work and how to teach it." We are glad to know that we have one of our own county who manifests so much interest in the primary work of the Sunday school as Miss Baumgardner.

The regular evening session opened with a song and praise service conducted by Rev. Kennedy, followed by a season of prayer. Miss Baumgardner gave an interesting as well as an encouraging talk on the topic. "What have been the rewards of faithful Sunday school teachers?" The president spoke on "District organization" and read an interesting report from Broad Top district. He expressed a desire that in the near future our county be thoroughly organized.

The Noitcelloc Revlis for the county fund was taken in both churches, which was a very creditable one. Dr Lang addressed the convention on "New methods of Sunday school work—are they beneficial?' At the overflow meeting the church was filled. Rev. J D. Miller presided. Prayer was offered by Rev. Horning. Dr. Lang and Miss Baumgardner reproduced their subjects.

Friday morning the "Sunrise prayer meeting," praying for the Sunday school work and consecrated helpers, which convened at 5:30 and was led by O. B. Poulson, of Johnstown, was well attended and a spiritual interest manifested.

At 9 a. m. the song and praise service was led by Rev. Nace, closing with prayer by Mr. Poulson. The minutes of last convention were read and approved. On the topic, "Our needs," three minute talks by delegates, superintendents and pastors. Capt. Little, Revs. Lamberson, Nace, Horning, Sharp and Mr. Poulson assisted Dr. Lang in bringing forward some of the needs. Dr. Lang by illustration showed what the Sunday School association really is and the value of it.

Rev. Miller, of Everett, ably discussed the important topic, "The mission of the church to the children." Miss Baumgardner made the closing talk of the morning session on primary work On motion of Capt. Little, J. A. Cuppett was appointed to report the proceedings of the convention to the publishers of the county papers.

The afternoon session was opened with singing by the convention and devotion led by Mrs. E. A. Sharp. "Soul feeding in teaching" was ably discussed by Rev. A. A. Hilleary. A solo, "Tell mother I'll be there," was sung by Mr. Poulson. "How to keep the boys in the Sunday school" was earnestly discussed by Mr. Poulson, who reminded us that the only way to win and keep souls is to first consecrate ourselves to the Lord. It was further discussed by Reverends Horning and Sigmund.

The president gave a very interesting verbal report of the year's work. The report of the treasurer and finance committee was accepted The statistical secretary, S. W. Salkeld, stated he had reports from eighty-five schools, only about one-half the number in the county. He is hopeful that every school in the county will be reported at an early date to assist him in reporting to the state association which convenes at Philadelphia on October 11.

The nominating committee reported as follows: For president, J. T. Painter; vice president, A. H. Whetstone; recording secretary, Miss Mary E Way; corresponding secretary, Rev. B. F. Bausman, treasurer, D M. Stoler; statistical secretary, S. W. Salkeld; department superintendents, primary and junior, Miss Maude Baumgardner; normal, Miss Isabel Pettigrew; home, J. A. Cuppett The report was accepted and those placed in nomination were elected.

The following resolutions were reported and adopted

1. That the needs of the Sunday schools are well in hand in the general scope of the association's work.

2. That as far as possible, all parents should be brought into still more intimate relations with the Sunday school by wise personal effort on the part of the workers.

3. That the Sunday school educates and elevates to the best life and has always been successful, and has an open way to greater success

4 That we recommend greater effort to bring the child in touch with the Book.

5. That we recommend that the program committee in the selection of speakers for the next annual convention correspond with the persons of whom they expect service and get their consent with topic, and only the names of those who can be present to speak shall appear on the program.

6 That we take this method of expressing our thanks to the committee of entertainment and the community for the courtesy and royal entertainment afforded. To the pastors, trustees and members for the use of the churches. To the convention officers and committees for their tireless efforts. To those on the program and to all others who have contributed to the efficiency of the convention. To the organist and choir for the excellent services rendered in the devotions of song.

7. That we herewith express our appreciation of the kindness of Superintendent Cooper, of the Bedford division, P. R. R, for the assurance of convenient connections in returning from the convention.

The time for holding the next annual meeting of the convention was fixed for Thursday and Friday, June 14 and 15, 1906 Provisional invitations were extended by delegates to hold the same at Schellsburg, Pleasantville, Pavia and St. Clairsville, to be decided by the executive committee. The Pennsylvania Herald was introduced by Dr. Lang.

The last session of the convention was opened with a song service conducted by Reverend Horning. Doctor Lang gave a most helpful address on "The Spiritual in the Sunday school." Reverend Horning addressed the crowded audience on "The voice of God in the Book."

Each session was largely attended and great interest manifested. The choir deserves praise for the excellent music which interspersed the different topics discussed. REPORTER.

Point Paragraphs.

POINT, June 20.—John L Ellis, of Bedford, a traveling salesman for H. C Heckerman, waited on our merchants Saturday last

The love feast at Spring Hope on Saturday and Sunday was well attended and the preaching services were good. Quite a number of strangers were present from Morrison's Cove and about Williamsburg, Blair county, whose names your correspondent failed to get.

Samuel Engle, of Hummelstown, Dauphin county, was a guest of the River Brethren at their love feast. Mr. Engle represents the Village Nurseries, of Harnedsville, Somerset county.

Mrs. J. W Hissong and two children, of Bedford, were guests of your correspondent's family last week. "Billy" could not stand living long without his wife and daughter, hence came to Point on Sunday.

Joe Allen, wife and two daughters, of Bedford, were guests of the family of your correspondent on Sunday. The old home seemed as it did some ten or fifteen years ago when the voices of the little ones were heard on all sides. There is nothing like beautiful, well behaved children to make a home what it should be.

Mrs. R. C Smith returned last week from a two weeks' visit to her sons in Johnstown and Windber, looking much better than when she went away.

The children's service held in the United Evangelical church Sunday night was well attended, not more than half the people being able to get into the church. The services were up to date, and the children who took part did well. The music, which is always good at this church, was "just splendid," as expressed by an attentive listener. The collection was also good.

Our old friend and neighbor, William A. Hoover, had three cows, and his son Harry had one killed by lightning at one time Sunday afternoon, leaving Mr. Hoover one cow and several head of young cattle. Mr. Hoover's loss is not less than $150.

Miss Helen Berkheimer and Miss Bertha Fetter, of Osterburg, were guests of Miss Katie Warren from Saturday until Monday.

Miss Ethel Rue, of Spring Hope, was the guest of Miss Edna Beckley on Sunday and Monday.

Cal. Brumbaugh and wife were guests of the family of Elias Sacberger from Saturday until Monday evening.

J. E. Blackburn sold six of the horses he brought home last Tuesday. HOOKER.

Cornerstone Laying.

The cornerstone of Coalmont's new church was laid on June 18 Rev. T. H. McAfee, of Columbia, preached forceful sermons and delivered a fine address. The attendance was large. Coalmont has never had a house of worship. The pastor, Rev. F. W. McGuire, has made an effort to find 1,000 persons who would give $1 each. Many such have been found and some have given more, so that nearly $600 in cash have been raised and it is hoped that the other contributors may yet be found.

THE AMERICAN BOY.

A National, Non-Secret And Patriotic Organization.

A WORTHY OBJECT.

Its Aim is to Cultivate Manliness in Muscle, Mind and Morals—Bedford's High Rank—The First Celebration.

The idea of the Order of the American Boy was recently originated by William C. Sprague, editor of the well known journal, the American Boy The society is national and non-secret; and the object, briefly stated, is: the cultivation of manliness in muscle, mind and morals. American Boy Day will be the great celebration of the order; and steps are being taken to make this a regular feature of our national life. The object of the celebration is to promote mutual and helpful friendships among boys; to inculcate lessons of patriotism and to stimulate boys to all worthy endeavor. It is to be purely a boys' day. There will be boy musicians, boy speakers, boy singers, boy poets, and when the custom is more thoroughly established, exhibits of boys inventors, boy journalists, boy machinists and handiwork of boys of every trade and talent.

Through the columns of his paper Mr. Sprague made an appeal to the public for interest in this noble enterprise, and the first to respond were Portland, Ore, Chautauqua, N Y, San Francisco, Cal., Boston, Mass, and Bedford, Pa. Bedford ranking fifth in line, will be the central point for New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania; that is, the boys of these three states will come to Bedford to celebrate.

July 4 has been chosen as the date of the first celebration in Bedford. We have chosen this day believing that there could be no more profitable, no happier way of celebrating our independence and cherishing the memory of its founders. Could they be with us—those colossal characters developed from the first genuine American boyhood—the great "father of his country" would stand with bared head, his tears of Valley Forge turned to tears of joy, and with holy hands uplifted, would invoke a blessing upon us; while from the lips of Patrick Henry would gush forth such a stream of eloquence as never came from the lips of man. We believe it is a righteous cause and that the future of our nation rests upon the American Boy of today, therefore we want to have a part in the good work, feeling confident that in a few years American Boy Day will be among the greatest of our national days

Every boy in Bedford county is wanted to help in this celebration. We want a thousand boys in the parade, we want to show our noble G. A. R., the brave boys of 1860, who will be with us, that their love for the glorious flag, their examples of loyalty will be cherished and emulated by the boys of 1905.

Come, boys, and join in this good work Farmers, arrange your work so that on July 4 you can rise early, go out to the pasture field, take out your two youngest horses, put up the bars, leaving the others to enjoy a well earned day of rest in the shade; then hitch up in the family carriage and bring your boys to Bedford. Tradesmen, merchants all over the county, lay down your tools, lock up the shop and store and come with your boys to join in celebrating the anniversary of our independence in one vast army of loyal, true American boys.

The program now under preparation will be unique and interesting. It will appear in this paper; watch for it G. C

Barn Raising in Bedford Township

More than 100 neighbors and friends on Thursday of last week assisted Lee Diehl, of Bedford township, in erecting the framework of a new barn on the Michael Diehl farm near Yont's station. The carpenter work was done by Grant and Christ Dibert. The structure is 68x40 feet. Those present were:

The Duryea Climbs Bedford Hills.

Malcolm Newstetter, the courteous and efficient representative of the Duryea Power company, of Reading, is at the Bedford House. He is demonstrating the many merits of the Duryea gasoline carriage, and to say that he has shown its advantages over many other machines does not express it. For speed, comfort and simplicity his machine has not had a rival here. As to the question of power, he has given the most satisfactory demonstration, with a load, on our steepest hills that has ever been seen in this vicinity. He has shown conclusively that the hills of Bedford county are no impediment in the way of the Duryea.

Miss Mary Moorehead.

Miss Mary Moorehead, of Altoona, died on Sunday. She was born in Bedford county on October 6, 1856. Her father, two sisters and two brothers survive her.

PENNSYLVANIA DRUGGISTS

Hold Annual Convention at Bedford Springs—Interesting Addresses.

The 28th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical association was formally opened Tuesday evening at the Springs. The meeting was called to order by the president, Prof. Julius A. Koch, of the Pittsburg College of Pharmacy. After prayer by Rev. H. B. Townsend Assistant Secretary C. H. Macey, of Altoona, was called to the floor and introduced Burgess Jo. W. Tate, of Bedford, who delivered the address of welcome, saying in part:

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—In behalf of the Bedford Springs company as well as in behalf of the good people of Bedford borough and county, I extend to you a most cordial welcome. The hospitality of our citizens is at your command. The freedom of our town is yours to use and enjoy. We are delighted to be honored with your presence and we sincerely hope your sojourn amongst us may be attended with pleasure and profit.

It is natural, as it certainly is gracious, that the representatives and advocates of purity in drugs should be attracted by the purity of our air and our waters. The presence of your wives and daughters and lady friends attests the purity of your motives, and is a guarantee that your deliberations will be conducted with candor, and that your conclusions will be honorable.

I am especially pleased to welcome the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical association because I feel and believe that it is engaged in a noble work. Indeed, in my humble judgment, your work is scarcely inferior to any that now engages popular attention. The aim of your association is "to unite the educated and reputable pharmacists and druggists of the state, to improve the science and art of pharmacy, and so restrict the dispensing and sale of medicines to regularly educated druggists and apothecaries."

If you are honestly animated by the principles you profess, no business—no profession could more consistently than your own adopt as its motto the words "Purity and Care."

To strike or kick a man when he is down justly merits and receives the emphatic condemnation of every fair-minded man; to administer to a man, prostrated by disease, an impure drug or compound of drugs is a crime—a crime dangerously near the borderland of murder. It is a fraud of the deepest dye—a crime against humanity and against humanity's God.

The placing of wholesale and important legislation upon our statute books was a wonderful work—a most beneficent work, and to your association is due all honor and glory and praise. But can you, dare you rest from your labors and supinely contemplate the glorious achievements of the past? No! not a thousand times no!

Your work is but fairly begun; it will not be concluded until every fraud, be he a manufacturer or a compounder of drugs, is held by an intelligent public in the same execration as the seducer of virtue and the betrayer of the state. I thank you for your considerate patience and again extend to you a cordial welcome to Bedford Springs.

Hearty applause followed Mr. Tate's address, after which William C. Frailey, of Lancaster, replied in happy vein, recalling his first impressions of the historic resort, referring to it as an old-time Mecca for political leaders, lauding the natural scenery of the community and the excellent hotel accommodations. He was followed by Mrs. W. F. Horne, of Carlisle, who replied in behalf of the ladies present. The president then read a masterful address dealing with the objects and achievements of the association.

Prof. Remington, of Philadelphia, who is chairman of the committee of 25 who had in charge the revision of the U S Pharmacopoeia,—Pharmacists' bible,—showed the first copy from the press to the convention amid cheers, and proceeded to explain the difficulties that have held back the publication. The chairman of the entertainment committee then invited the convention to the ball room where many engaged in dancing.

SCHELLSBURG SEMINARY.

Lecture Course—Baccalaureate Sermon—Closing Exercises—A Successful Year.

Dr. A. B. Van Ormer's lectures, announced in an earlier issue of THE GAZETTE, were delivered, beginning June 16th and closing on the 22nd, six in all. The lectures dealt with matters of vital importance in school work and home training. The Physical Basis of Education, Suggestion, Imitation and Habit are some of the topics. Besides there were two popular lectures, Life's Grammar and Charles Dickens, Pedagogue, which are of the highest order. They were simple in style, but touched the deepest problems of life. These lectures were exceptionally able and helpful, and their influence will long be felt.

Sabbath evening, June 25, the president of the seminary will deliver a Baccalaureate sermon in the Presbyterian church. Wednesday evening, the 28th, the closing exercises of the seminary will take place. They will consist of orations, recitations, music and a debate. The public is cordially invited. This closes the work of a successful year. Forty-six pupils were enrolled.

Book-Smith.

Beneath a floral arch and amid a profusion of palms and ferns in the presence of a few relatives and friends at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Smith, Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, Rev. M. L Culler united in marriage Miss DeOlva Smith and Harry Bock, of Clearville. The groom is a florist and market gardner. The bride is an accomplished young woman, amiable and highly respected in the community. They left on the morning train for Clearfield where they will make their home.

Children's Day at A. M. E. Z. Church.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the pastor of the A. M. E. Z. church to give a splendid exercise on Sunday, June 25. Proceeds of the day will be spent in the interest of education. At 11 a. m. the pastor will preach on Parental Obligation. At 3 p. m. a "floral service" at which time Rev. H. B. Townsend will preach. At 7 45 the children's exercise will take place. All are cordially invited.

RELIGIOUS TOPICS

Discussed by Lutheran Ministers at the Fifty-Sixth

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Rev. M. L. Culler Re-elected President—Other Officers Chosen—Next Meeting at Madley.

The Bedford county conference of the Lutheran church held its 56th annual convention in St. John's church, Graceville, June 13-24. The conference sermon was preached by the president, Rev. M. L. Culler, upon the text: "Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves; for they watch for your souls as those that must give an account, that they may do it with joy and not with grief." The thought was developed, that since ministers of the gospel have their commission from the Lord Jesus Christ to preach and administer the holy sacraments, the people to whom they minister are under obligation to obey them and submit to their teaching and religious guidance, in all things scriptural and christian.

While it was much regretted that five of the pastors of the county were absent with valid excuses, the people of the congregation and community manifested their deep interest in all the business and discussions by completely filling the church at all the sessions. Those present were: Revs. G. D. Gross, of West End; J. M. Snyder, of Clearville, the pastor loci; S J. Ulrich; J. W. Lingle, M. L. Culler, of Bedford, and the retired and venerable George C. Probst. He is indeed a father in Israel, and one of the faithful and laborious pioneers of Lutheranism in Bedford county, where he began his ministry in 1838. Five pastors are now serving large pastorates which are the outgrowth of his abundant labors. It is always a joy to all the pastors and people to have this dear father present with his counsels and ripened experience. He still lives amid the scenes of his abundant labors, calmly waiting the call to come to "our Father's house."

The election of officers resulted in the choice of Rev. Culler as president; Rev. Lingle as secretary and Rev Snyder as treasurer.

The first subject, "The ministry and by whom and how called," was fully and freely discussed. The united conviction of all is that there are two factors concerned in the call of every true minister of Christ. He is called by the Lord Jesus Christ, manifested in a firm conviction in the soul wrought by the Holy Spirit. And speaking for Lutheran polity, he is called to any particular congregation or charge by the votes of the members. He is called for an indefinite time, as long as his ministry is faithful and successful in the judgment of the pious and faithful membership of his charge. He is not "hired" for a year or a few years, to be driven away by the opposition of unreasonable and perverse men. His office is of divine appointment.

The topic, "The authority, rights and duties of pastors," called forth very earnest discussion. It was agreed by all that the minister has the authority which his commission from the Lord Jesus Christ confers upon him, to preach the gospel and administer the sacraments. The minister must magnify his office and not fear the force of nor swerve from his sincere convictions by reason of the frowns of men. He need fear no one but God. Yet he is bound to speak the truth in love. He is the undershepherd of the great Shepherd to feed the flock over which the Holy Ghost made him overseer. The faithful pastor has the right to claim financial support from the people to whom he ministers, according to the command of God and the dictates of common honesty.

The topic, "The rights and duties of congregations," received full consideration. Congregations have the authority to call pastors—the church council, as some suppose, has not this authority; the right to representation, equal with its ministry, in our synods and all the deliberative bodies of our church. Their duty is also to support their pastors since it is God's will.

The subject, "The pastor, the church council and the congregation," called forth a discussion very instructive to the large audience. The pastor with the church council is the lowest judicatory of our church. The council has no right to transact business pertaining to government or discipline in the absence of the pastor, unless his absence is voluntary and avoidable. All the powers the council has are delegated to them by the congregation.

The subject, "Who are in good and regular standing in our churches?" claimed a large share in discussion. Only those are in good standing who faithfully use the means of grace—lead Christian lives, and contribute according to their ability to all the necessary expenditures of the congregation. And only such are qualified to vote in any matter that comes before the congregation.

"The relation of the pastor to the Sunday school, and other organizations of the congregation" offered a rich field for debate. The conviction of all is that the pastor, by virtue of his office is superintendent of Sunday school and overseer over every thing and every organization which has any connection with the church. He is the shepherd of the lambs as well as the sheep of his flock. His Lord entrusted him with all the interests of the church and holds him responsible for the prosperity of the church.

Conference adjourned at noon on the 14th to meet in its next convention in the Lybarger church at Madley station.

NEWS ITEMS.

The Daily Happenings Gathered and Briefly Recorded.

The historic Cumberland Road, or old National Pike, which had its inception in the mind of George Washington, was thrown open in Greene and Washington counties—the last ones in which toll was collected—June 1.

A disastrous wreck on the Western Maryland railroad near Patapsco Saturday afternoon resulted in the death of 24 people and the injury of as many more. A passenger train crashed into a freight drawn by two engines.

Samuel Greason, colored, was on Friday acquitted of the murder of John Edwards, Mrs. Kate Edwards, wife of the murdered man, whose testimony convicted Greason over three years ago, completely exonerating him. Edwards was murdered nearly four years ago and Greason was arrested several months later. His death warrant was issued ten times and his case has developed into one of the most remarkable murder trials in this state. Mrs. Edwards, the mother of Greason's child, is under sentence of death and it is expected that the governor will fix the date for her execution within a short time. It was postponed several months ago so that she could be used as a witness at Greason's trial.

Mrs. George Culp.

Sabbath morning while our Sunday schools were in session the news came like a shock to us that Mrs. Ada Tucker Culp had died at her home near Scalp Level. We had known of her illness but had hopes of her recovery. The cause of death was typhoid pneumonia. Ada, as we had been accustomed to call her, was the daughter of B. F. and Margaret Tucker, of this place. She was married nine months ago to George M. Culp, formerly of this village. She was in her nineteenth year. Her body arrived here on Sabbath evening. To the mortal vision it seems hard to lay in the grave one so young, and in whom there was much promise of usefulness, but in the great hereafter we may know and fully understand that God doeth all things well. The beautiful life will continue to speak to the living, though the loved form is absent, and who can say what life will be made better or what soul led to the Redeemer by these holy influences.

The funeral service was held Tuesday forenoon in the Methodist church and was conducted by Rev. Gulden. It was largely attended by relatives and friends who assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to one they loved so dearly, and whose life had been so short. Her body was laid to rest in the union cemetery.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the North wind's breath,
And stars to set—but all—
Thou hast all seasons for thine own—oh Death!"

Schellsburg, June 20.

Dead Near Mann's Choice.

The crew of one of the Bedford division freight trains discovered the body of a man by the track near Mann's Choice Wednesday night. They reported the matter at Mann's Choice and the officials at Bedford were notified. Early yesterday morning Officer Beegle and some of the railroad officials went to Mann's Choice where the body had been taken but could not determine his identity other than by a card admitting him to the synagogue at Altoona and bearing the name I. Singer. The card was signed by L. Lunenthal and J. Festensteim. He had a violin in his possession. His wrist was broken and the coroner's jury decided last evening that he met death by being struck by a locomotive.

Rev. Henry F. Dittmar.

Rev. Henry F. Dittmar, an able minister of the Reformed church, died at his home in Jefferson on June 4. The deceased was born at Loysburg on September 11, 1864. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, and the following sisters and brothers: May and Kate, of Loysburg; Anna, of Charlotte, N C; Werner, of Loysburg, and Rev. David N. WASHINGTON LETTER

The Russo-Japanese Difficulties to Be Adjusted in a

TREATY OF WASHINGTON.

Interest in the Resignation of Judson and Harmon—Complaint Against Newspapers—Enactment of a Statute.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—The decision of Russia and Japan to conduct their peace conference in the capital of the United States will doubtless prove a source of gratification to all loyal Americans even though they appreciate that there are some dangers entailed by the suddenly enhanced importance of Washington as a diplomatic centre. In itself the decision implies a compliment to this country for the reason that it is a testimonial to the perfect neutrality which the United States has maintained throughout the struggle of Russia and Japan for the supremacy of the far east. Japan feared the partisan interests of Europe and persistently objected to meeting the Russian commissioners in any European capital save that of its ally, England. Russia objected to London and would not listen to the suggestion that the peace negotiations be conducted near the seat of war, or, in fact, any where in Asia. Consequently the United States became the natural place in which to seek a compromise city and when this was made clear to the president he immediately proposed Washington, although his previous influence had been in favor of The Hague, for the sentimental reasons surrounding that birthplace of international arbitration and universal peace movement.

Once the preliminaries to the formal conference of Japanese and Russian plenipotentiaries are settled this country will have little official relation with the negotiations. According to custom it is incumbent on this country to play the part of host and provide a place for the meetings of the delegates but there are an abundance of such places in Washington so that obligation presents few difficulties. It has been suggested by the president that, if Washington in August proves uncomfortably warm, the plenipotentiaries may easily adjourn to some cooler city for a time to return to Washington later in the season. The president has even said that if this course is determined upon he will place two naval vessels at the disposal of the conference to take them to some place like Newport or Bar Harbor presumably the dispatch boats, the Dolphin and the Sylph. There is no doubt, however, that if the plenipotentiaries succeeded in effecting a peace convention, and the president is certain that they will, that it will be signed in Washington and will go down in history as the treaty of Washington, being the first convention of great international importance ever signed in the capital of the United States.

People in Washington are watching with a good deal of interest for the promised explanation of the resignation of Messrs. Judson and Harmon who were retained by the government as special counsel in the prosecution of the rebate case against the Santa Fe railroad. All that is known so far is that these attorneys have resigned because of a difference of opinion with Attorney General Moody but it is suspected in some quarters that this difference arose with regard to the possible prosecution of Paul Morton, secretary of the navy. However, the attorney general has promised to publish an explanation which will accord with the views of himself and the distinguished counsel and the conservative public will await that explanation.

Attorney General Moody has recently voiced a complaint against the newspapers of the country because, he says, they want the department of justice to try its cases before the tribunal of the press, as he expresses it. In other words, the attorney general maintains that the newspapers insist on knowing and on publishing the discoveries and plans of the department before they are revealed in the courts and that in this way the cases of the government are weakened by their revelation in advance to the attorneys for the defense. While there may be some ground for this complaint there seems to be little reason why the department should not refuse to reveal information when such revelation would weaken the government's case and the newspapermen charged with the duty of reporting the work of the department have never perceived any reluctance to suppress information when it pleased the attorney general to do so.

Attorney General Moody made one complaint in conversation with your correspondent recently which deserves consideration and even support by the law-abiding people of the country. He said that with a view to preventing an innocent man from suffering the law makers had gone to a radical extreme in placing obstacles in the way of prosecuting criminals, or men charged with crime, and that it was, under existing statutes, a matter of years to merely bring to trial a man who was under indictment irrespective of how conclusive the evidence was. The attorney general referred especially to the case of State Senator George E. Green, of New York, who was indicted more than two years ago and who is still free awaiting the decision of the supreme court on his habeas corpus suit, which decision cannot be rendered until autumn. The attorney general bespoke popular support for his recommendation to congress that a statute be enacted providing that any person indicted for violation of a United States statute might be brought immediately to the District of Columbia for trial without any intervening legal proceedings. It is to be hoped that such a statute will be enacted next session.

Fire at Schellsburg.

During the storm of Tuesday afternoon lightning struck the large bank barn of Capt. A. E. Schell, at Schellsburg. The building together with an adjoining granary was completely destroyed. All the stock was saved but a reaper, grain drill, mower, wagon and other farm implements together with about 100 bushels of wheat, 60 bushels of oats and 70 bushels of corn were consumed. A woodshed and hogpen situated just across an alley and belonging to W. C. Colvin were also consumed. Captain Schell's loss is estimated at $1,200 and Mr. Colvin's is not over $50. The direction of the wind and the heavy rain saved other buildings. Captain Schell had $950 insurance on the barn and contents.

CUBAN PATRIOT DEAD

Among the men who fought for Cuban independence Gen. Maximo Gomez occupied a place unique. In his death the little republic has sustained a decided loss. He will be remembered in history as of first rank among the world's patriots and as a warrior his rank will be high. He waged war under adverse circumstances and achieved much. He commanded the respect not only of all Cubans but of the American officers with whom he came in contact during and after the Spanish-American war. He received his training in the Spanish army and was the leader and a central figure in two Cuban revolutions, the latter of which resulted in "Cuba libre."

When the Cuban government was established he was talked of for the first president, but the honor fell to a man of peace rather than to the scarred veteran. As a patriot he was unwavering; as a warrior he stained not his blade by inhuman deeds. He lived long, attained his ambitions for Cuba and died respected and honored.

FROM THEIR STANDPOINT

Our Republican brethren in their recent county convention, in their resolutions, declared: "We also express confidence in SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER, governor of this great commonwealth, and approve of his administration." Is this really the conviction of the rank and file of the party in the county? Do they truly sanction his slaughtering hospital bills to save money for a statue for a trimmer and a trickster? Of his signing the most iniquitous of the ripper bills of the last legislature at the behest of the "most influential political leader of Philadelphia?" But the resolutions continue: "That we hereby tender to the HONORABLE BOIES PENROSE, our representative in congress, our state senator and members of the house, our thanks for the prompt and efficient manner in which they have discharged their duties as servants of the people in their respective positions." What duties, pray? Do they refer to their action on "rippers" or on the bill to allow trolley lines to carry freight? Had the gentlemen no thought of the people of Philadelphia, then as now struggling with the political octopus of their city? Why did they compliment Penrose and ignore Durham and McNichol? Ponder their platform.

A VACATION NEEDED

The Johnstown Tribune in an article that appeared some time ago speaks of the long-expected postal sub-stations as a reality. It speaks of them as "much-needed" and this is sufficient justification for the action of the department in establishing them. This article like many of its kind refers to the great amount of work being done by the representative of this district in congress and leads to the suggestion from THE GAZETTE that the gentleman take a vacation now that things are in good shape. Now that these sub-stations have been established and the rural routes have been arranged for the department in charge of postoffices and post roads will likely be able to get along for a time at least. It will not be necessary for the local statesman to initiate the new factory inspector; Saxton has her license and the hotel is open; John H. Barney has been nominated for county commissioner and the resolutions have been drafted and read—the platform complimenting Pennypacker and Penrose has been fixed; the county committee is safe in the hands of Chairman Miller; all this being done surely the worries could be laid aside for a season and a little rest and recreation sought.

A NEW COMMITTEE

Strange have been the moves of the last few weeks on the political chessboard of Philadelphia and these moves will each and all have an influence on the affairs of the whole state. It seems strange that 21 of the members of the Union League of the city should sit back and look upon the "doings" of the "gang" all along its iniquitous course and now come forth with an effort that would tend to repudiate Mayor Weaver by having the present Republican ticket removed and another substituted. If these members of the Union League were reformers of pure metal they would have raised their voices when the "gang," boldly and in the open, were passing iniquitous "rippers" and doing other deeds equally dastardly. But no! they silently sanctioned these moves and now come forth with a letter of suggestions and recommendations. It is too late; the die is cast! The people of the city and of the state are aroused and they will stand by the mayor until the last vestige of the once powerful machine of Penrose, Durham and McNichol has been obliterated. The withdrawal of a ticket made by the "gang" openly and the substitution of one made by the same "gang" secretly will not satisfy the people who have long been outraged by this corrupt band of grafters and thieves who without conscience have looted the treasury of the city and the state. Theirs is a fake movement toward reform such as have in times past been successfully plotted and executed by the "master spirit," the predecessor of Penrose—but those times are past; the people are not now to be fooled by the workings, in secret, of the "gang" who formerly worked in the open and protected themselves from prison by their undisputed power.

Cost of Telegraph.

In order to keep the 30,000 miles of telegraph lines in order in Great Britain an expenditure of about $25 000,000 a year is necessary. Quay Transfers His Allegiance—The Breaking out of the Civil War—Quay in the Army—Cameron and Curtin Candidates for the U. S. Senate—Quay's Use of Money —The Pittsburg Riot Bill.

Copyright, 1905, by Albert Brandt.

[By Special Permission of "The Arena Magazine," Published by Albert Brandt Trenton, N J, and Boston, Mass.]

Originally a Whig, Quay had joined the newly-formed Republican party, and upon the expiration of his appointed term as prothonotary, was elected for a full term, and re-elected for a second term. This continuous tenure in one of the choicest offices of Beaver county gave him his first schooling, for, although still under thirty years of age, he speedily became one of the dominant Republican leaders of that county.

He took an active part in the campaign of 1860, which made Curtin governor of Pennsylvania and Abraham Lincoln president of the United States, attracting Curtin's attention to his ability as an organizer. With the breaking out of the civil war, he resigned the prothonotaryship, and helped to raise a company in the 10th Pennsylvania reserves, being mustered in as a lieutenant in his company. Before the regiment was sent to the front Governor Curtin concluded that he needed him to assist in the enlistment and organization of the troops being hurried forward from Pennsylvania to the seat of war. He, therefore, appointed him assistant commissary-general on his own staff, with the rank of lieutenant colonel, and Quay hurried to Harrisburg to enter upon his new duties. When, shortly afterwards, the military staff of the governor was abolished, he became Curtin's private secretary, acting in that capacity for a year.

The following year he appointed Quay as colonel of the 134th Pennsylvania infantry, the latter assuming command in August, 1862. His regiment missed participation in the second battle of Bull Run by a few hours, arriving on the ground after the fighting had ceased. A similar experience befel it at Antietam, after which Quay was attacked by typhoid fever. Never of robust constitution, his recovery was slow, and upon the advice of Governor Curtin, who wanted a military state agent at Washington to look after the interests of the Pennsylvania soldiers in the field, he resigned his commission the day previous to the battle of Fredericksburg. Learning that a battle was to be fought the next day, he tendered his services as a volunteer, to General Tyler, the commander of the brigade in which his regiment was included, and served on the staff of the latter in that battle. A quarter of a century afterwards he was awarded by congress a medal of honor for valor displayed on this occasion, and although some of his critics ascribe this award largely to political influence, justice demands that due credit be given Colonel Quay for undoubted courage displayed during that memorable conflict.

He was, immediately afterwards, transferred to Washington as military state agent, by appointment of Governor Curtin. Before the close of the war he was recalled to Harrisburg to again become the military secretary of Governor Curtin in which position he materially extended his acquaintanceship throughout the state. He was thus favored by fortune to make many friends, extend courtesies and favors, which he was not loth, later on, to turn to advantage in his political skirmishes and fights.

After the downfall of the rebellion he returned to Beaver county, and asked the Republicans to send him to the legislature. This request was readily complied with, the fact that he was in favor with the revered war governor of the state being a sufficient passport to popular favor at home. Twice re-elected, it was during his third term at Harrisburg that he played false to his benefactor, to become the political pupil and final successor of the astute Simon Cameron, as "The Master-Spirit" of the Republican organization of Pennsylvania.

The legislature of 1867 was to elect a successor to Edgar Cowan in the United States senate. Cameron and Curtin were the leading candidates for the succession and it was evident that the one who could succeed in organizing the house in his own interest would have a decided advantage in the contest for the senatorship. Quay was Curtin's candidate for speaker, Cameron putting forward J. P. Glass, of Allegheny. To the great surprise of Curtin's followers, Quay abandoned the field the night before the house was to meet, and turned in for Glass, who was elected, and the control of the house was thus transferred to Cameron. This was an act of treachery which Curtin never forgave.

Quay had already named one of his sons for the war governor, and perhaps considered this a sufficient payment of the debt of gratitude he owed the latter. At any rate he abandoned his former benefactor and enlisted under the Cameronian flag, his first public reward being that of the appointment as chairman of the committee of ways and means, by Speaker Glass. There were ugly charges to the effect that Quay had secured something more substantial than the leadership of the house for his desertion of Curtin, but these charges were never proved in court. It is a matter of record, however, that Quay soon began to build a $13,000 house which became his residence in Beaver. Shortly afterwards, too, he was accused by the Pittsburg Commercial with trying to persuade Internal Revenue Supervisor Alexander P. Tutton to accept $1,000 per week as the price of suspending legal proceedings against a distillery charged with defrauding the revenue. Quay brought a libel suit against the Commercial which was, as is usual in such cases, never tried, the outcome of this episode being the acquisition of the Commercial by Quay's friends, who thus took a bond of fate that the charge should never be repeated

This transfer of his fealty from Curtin to Cameron marked the entrance of Quay as a prominent factor into the field of state politics. Cameron had him appointed secretary of the Republican state central committee, and in four years the pupil had become a greater adept in political strategem than the master. From that time forward Quay became more necessary to Cameron than Cameron was to Quay, a fact which was given a vivid illustration a few years later, when the younger Cameron is said to have advanced a large sum to make good the peculations of Quay and some of his associates from the funds of the state treasury. Quay's political career was a costly one, but those who profited by his methods could not afford to do without him at any price.

Cameron made the use of money an essential of success in politics, but Quay made politics expensive beyond the most extravagant dreams of the founder of the Pennsylvania Republican machine. An illustration of the growing use of money in the carrying on of political campaigns can be presented in the statement that the cost of the Republican state campaign in 1860, during which Col. A K. McClure was the Republican state chairman, was only $12,000. Quay's election as Republican state chairman, a position without any visible emoluments, in 1895 was reported, by himself, to have cost more than $200,000. More money was expended in the later years of Quay's leadership in single rural counties during heated campaigns than was expended in the entire state to carry it for Lincoln and Curtin in 1860

Quay's first and most substantial political reward as state leader came in 1872, when, after having assisted in carrying the state for General Hartranft for governor, he was made secretary of the commonwealth, at the beginning of Hartranft's administration, being re-appointed in Hartranft's second term. At this period Quay's longing for wealth began to outstrip his political ambition. The emoluments of the office of secretary of the commonwealth did not equal the value of his services to the public, in Quay's own estimation. The legislature of 1877, a subservient body, revived a forgotten and discarded office in Philadelphia, called a recordership, an office notable for its entire uselessness and its big fees, which amounted to not less than $40,000 a year. The ink was not dry on Governor Hartranft's signature to this piece of graft legislation when Quay's name was sent to the senate as the new recorder of Philadelphia. The senate, in duty bound, promptly confirmed the appointment and Quay exchanged Harrisburg for Philadelphia as a place of residence, with an increase of emoluments which paid considerable more than moving expenses. Though a rich office had been created purposely for him, Quay's Philadelphia experience proved disappointing. At Harrisburg as at Beaver he was easily the dominating political influence, in Philadelphia he could hardly find himself in the crowd. Whatever political influence he exerted in that city had to be executed by proxy, and this didn't suit the statesman from Beaver.

He was selected as Republican state chairman during the campaign of 1878, when the state was carried for Henry M. Hoyt for governor. With the inauguration of Hoyt in January, 1879, Quay promptly resigned the recordership of Philadelphia to accept his old position as secretary of the commonwealth, under the new governor.

It was during the session of the legislature of 1879 that the famous Pittsburg Riot bill exposures occurred, which involved several of Quay's friends and made it necessary for them to be saved from the penitentiary through his powerful intervention as a member and the controlling spirit of the pardon board.

The history of this Riot bill, though old and forgotten by many, is most interesting and instructive and shows how, from the earliest days of Quay's power and influence, he perverted the talents of which he was undoubtedly possessed to the basest uses. Instead of protecting the interests of the people he made it his business to serve soulless corporations, to whom neither the laws of God or of man are a barrier in the prosecution of their selfish and lawless plans. He did not hesitate to encourage bribery, and after conviction of the criminals secure for them a free pardon and save them from disgracing even the penitentiary!

The Pittsburg riots of 1877 had resulted in the destruction of property to the value of two or three million dollars, for which, under the law, Allegheny county was liable. The Pennsylvania railroad was the heaviest loser, and wanted its money. The Allegheny county tax-payers demurred, and a scheme was concocted to have the state assume the bill, with a million and a half thrown in, to be used if necessary in convincing reluctant legislators that the measure was a moral and just one.

PAUL MORTON SELECTED.

Roosevelt as a Power for Peace—The Result of the Russo-Japanese War—The Equitable Society's Difficulties.

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE

NEW YORK, June 20—Two great events have occurred in the week just past which have brought New York into prominence throughout the civilized world. The business of the Equitable Life Assurance society, which has kept the financial world on the ragged edge for many months, has been practically settled. The difficult point in the settlement lay in the fact that the multi-millionaires who received high salaries and who absolutely held in their power the enormous sum of four hundred and seventy-five millions of dollars were not willing to part with the holdings that gave them unlimited power. It was recognized from the first that if peace, with justice, was ever to come it could only be accomplished by inducing these capitalists to part with their holdings for a price, for as long as some members of the board of trustees held the majority of the stock, the chances of peace were hopeless The most important question that looked to a settlement was what man could be found who would be equally received by both of the contending parties Two weeks ago a dozen different men, well known in financial circles, were named as the fortunate individual whose salary should be double that of the United States. When the secretary of the navy, Paul Morton, handed in his resignation to President Roosevelt, politicians throughout the United States were asking why he did it. The position he held was the most important in the president's cabinet, surpassing that of the secretary of war or even that of the secretary of state. The United States is building up a great naval power; the secretary's authority to act was unlimited, the honor and glory of his position unsurpassed. Among the ancient gods Mammon was one of the mightiest, and it would almost look as if Secretary Morton resigned his great office, to worship in "the temple of mammon;" at any rate he has been the only man who could induce Mr. Hyde and President Alexander to part with their holdings. The price of Mr. Hyde's sacrifice oscillates between one and three millions of dollars; it probably exceeds the largest guess by some millions. The price named for President Alexander's holdings is not yet known but the presumption is that it is sufficient to keep him from becoming a county charge Fourteen members of the board of trustees handed in their resignations and it was a matter of some surprise and considerable satisfaction that the name of ex-President Grover Cleveland was among the newly elected. A point which gives special importance to the election of Paul Morton is that he is backed by the well known financier, Thomas F. Ryan; Ryan is the man who has built up many of the most important corporations in the United States; his combinations on gas, electricity and steel have given him a financial precedence hardly equaled by any other man known to the financial world. J. Pierpont Morgan was considered a lucky man when he succeeded in combining all the great steam ship lines into a single tremendous power; his fee of sixteen millions of dollars for achieving that long desired combination was said to be the largest sum received for any purpose, by any man, as far as history records, since the foundation of the world. The vast wealth of Mr. Morgan pales before the monetary power of Thomas F Ryan, who is said to have under his absolute control about one thousand millions of dollars. These vast accumulations of money bode anything but good to the laboring millions who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. Reforms are promised in the Equitable Life Assurance society and if the expectations are realized Mr. Morton will have the "God-speed" of those laboring millions, whose fate for many months has been trembling in the balance.

It is a matter of pride and satisfaction to New York city and state, that one of the great arbitrators of the world's peace, on whom all eyes have been fixed for many weeks with hope and fear, Democrats and Republicans alike, a son of New York, has measured up to the fullest standard of political manhood, and his name is Theodore Roosevelt; we remember him only a few years ago as the advocate of civil service reform. What did civil service reform mean? It took the power from the hands of the government service and gave to each department men and women qualified to perform its work. The doctrine of civil service reform was unpopular; the political Sabbboleth of the past was "To the victors belong the spoils" and in a Democratic government like ours this was a hard granite fact difficult to overcome It seemed only just if a man was to be held responsible for the performance of the duties of his office, that he should have the choosing of his own subordinates. Mr. Roosevelt resigned from that, became police commissioner and assistant secretary of the navy, a leader of the Rough Riders in the far west, a successful soldier in the Spanish war, governor of the state of New York, vice-president of the United States and by one of the greatest misfortunes that this republic ever knew, Theodore Roosevelt became president of the United States.

No man having the slightest touch of humanity in his bosom, but looks back with horror on the terrible sacrifices of the Russian and Japanese war; when the casualties on both sides are footed up there is little doubt that the loss will not be far from a million of men. The discoveries in the science of war have rendered the loss on both the attack and defense terrible. The torpedo, the torpedo-destroyer, the marine and sub-marine mine have added a wholesale horror to war never dreamed of by nations a hundred years ago, where men are suddenly launched into eternity by thousands without a moment's warning. The tremendous reach of modern cannon is another terrible element that seems to make peace almost impossible. But Russian pride has been lowered by the decrees of fate; her ships upon the sea and her armies on the land have tumbled to ruins like a house of cards. Japan comes out of the conflict with untarnished honor and the man who was entrusted with the mission of bringing these enemies together was Theodore Roosevelt, the president of the United States.

REV. BIGELOW'S SERMON.

Are the Rich Growing Richer and the Poor Poorer?

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, O., June 19.—Are the rich growing richer and the poor poorer? This question was discussed in the pulpit of the Vine Street Congregational church by the pastor, Rev Herbert S. Bigelow. Mr. Bigelow said in part:

Dr. Minot J. Savage is reported in the New York press as denying that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer. This he characterized as a misconception for which Henry George's book, "Progress and Poverty," is responsible.

It would seem that the distinguished Unitarian preacher has misconceived the teaching of Mr. George. In "Progress and Poverty," page 8, the author says: "It is true that wealth has been greatly increased and that the average of comfort, leisure and refinement has been raised; but these gains are not general. In them the lowest class does not share."

In a foot-note Mr. George defines more precisely his contention. It is that advancing civilization does not increase the ability of the poorest class to obtain the necessaries of life.

INCREASING DEPENDENCE OF THE POOR

Dr Savage was thinking, perhaps, of society as a whole. Mr. George admits with him that the average of comfort, leisure and refinement it has been raised. But Mr. George was not discussing the condition of the average man. He was discussing the condition of the poorest man. He maintained that the poorest class was more independent in a primitive society. On the frontier "there is no luxury, but there is no destitution. No one makes an easy living; but every one can make a living, and no one able and willing to work is oppressed by the fear of want."

When the log cabin disappears and the frontier becomes densely populated and highly organized, wealth increases, says Mr. George, but "so does poverty take a darker aspect. Some get an infinitely better and easier living, but others find it hard to get a living at all."

VICTIMS OF CHANCE

In his book on "Poverty," page 93, Robert Hunter says: "The history of the world has perhaps never shown more abject victims of chance than the modern propertyless workmen." Mr. Hunter quotes Carrol D Wright as denying that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer. Concerning this dispute Mr. Hunter observes: "It is unnecessary to say that we might choose to take Mr. Wright's statement or choose to take his opponent's statement. It is largely a matter of temperament which side one takes in the matter, for, in either case, we have no facts to support our position"

Mr. Wright and Mr. Savage voice an optimism which seems to be unmoved by the social tragedy. "It is an optimism," says Mr. Hunter, "which results from ignorance or from the lack of any real concern."

THE REAL QUESTION.

The real question, however, is not whether the poor are better off now than fifty years ago, but whether they are as well off as they might be. Are 94 per cent. of the people of Manhattan homeless? Is one-tenth of the population buried in the Potter's Field? Do the legal evictions on that unhappy island affect over 60,000 families annually? Are 99 per cent. of the wage-earners of Manhattan propertyless? Does the Astor family alone levy a tribute upon those miserable inhabitants of over $200,000,000 a year? Do 35 per cent. of Dr. Savage's fellow-citizens live in poverty? If these are facts, what shall we say? Shall we say, "They used to be worse," or shall we say, "They must be better?"

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

SHE LOOKS TWENTY YEARS YOUNGER.

How a Bedford Woman Shook Off the Hand of Time and is Young Again.

"I don't need to speak her name," said Heckerman, the druggist, last week, "for you'll know who I mean when you next see her. Why, I never knew a woman's appearance to be so changed and improved. Her complexion is now as fresh and beautiful as a young girl's, her step is elastic and her eye has the snap and sparkle that goes with perfect health. And we are partly responsible for it," continued the druggist, "for we recommended what transformed her from a woman of forty to a girl of twenty What is it? Well, it is Dr Davis' famous prescription, Laxakola Tonic Tablets, and when I heard of it I immediately ordered a large supply And the way they tone up the system, clear the complexion and rejuvenate the whole body is surprising They are a gentle laxative, promoting an easy, natural action of the bowels and carrying off all waste matter that way instead of letting the poison come through the skin There isn't a woman in town who can afford to be without Laxakola Tonic Tablets, for they cost only 25cents a box, and if they don't do all that is claimed we pay her money back."

STRONGEST IN THE WORLD

SURPLUS $80,000,000.00

SURPLUS

The surplus of a life assurance company is the most important point to its policy holders—

It is the proof of strength—the margin of assets over all liabilities—the fund from which all dividends and profits must be paid—

It indicates wise management in the past—it guarantees absolute safety in the future—

The surplus of the Equitable is over Eighty Million of Dollars—more by many millions than any other assurance surplus in the world—

Something to remember when you're making an assurance contract upon which the welfare of your family or business interests may depend—

AULD LANG SYNE.

Major Holsinger and R. F. Gibson Tell About Old Times in Bedford.

ROSEDALE, KAN, June 17.—Some four years since I noticed a letter signed R. F. Gibson asking for papers containing an account of the "Harris Academy." Now I, too, had gone to this ancient school My father was then engaged in general merchandising in Bedford and although quite young I was sent to this school to keep me off the street. I remember the old stage coach that carried passengers. They usually were four-horse concerns and when they came into town they fed and dined at the Bedford hotel. It was the custom upon unloading the passengers to "whip up" and make the run for the stables. It so happened that I was paving in the street and was run over by one of these teams, but being small and the good Lord taking care of the boy, I was not seriously hurt. This circumstance put an end to racing in Bedford. My recollection is that it was a piece of bravado on my part, but all the same it served a good purpose.

Mr. Gibson wrote that his 50th anniversary was on the tapis and he desired copies of the articles to read to his family at their reunion.

The letter signed R. F. Gibson and "Harris Academy" set me thinking. I figured it out that R. F. stood for "Bob." Bob had clerked for my father in Bedford and went to Woodbury with us. He left us in, possibly, '42. I had not seen him since. However I wrote him of having "a boy of that name who sold calico and molasses for my father. Could it be possible that he still lives?" An answer came back—"I am the same Bob"—and much that interested me. One thing I will here quote: "Frank, do you remember one night, your father having gone to the city, Abe Satterfield (another clerk) and I having closed the store for the night, concluded to have a smoke. You wanted one and we fixed you up and how sick it made you?" I answered yes. This was my first and last cigar.

Two years ago while on a fishing trip north I visited him in his home. No man is more respected than Mr. Gibson. He has been a justice of the peace for so long a time that he is known as Chief Justice Gibson. He has married possibly more people than any man in his state. Believing that he would enjoy Mr. Schell's letter in a recent issue of THE GAZETTE I sent him the paper and received the following splendid letter, which I have concluded would interest your many readers. Fraternally yours,

FRANK HOLSINGER

MR. GIBSON'S LETTER.

DECORAH, IA., June 13.

DEAR MAJOR:—How fast time passes away. I am ashamed that I have permitted so much time to pass since I received your last good letter, but I am sure that your good heart will excuse me when I tell you that I have had so many things to take up my time that some of my correspondents have been neglected I do truly thank you, major, for the old BEDFORD GAZETTE Why, it brings so many incidents of the long ago to my mind that I feel like a boy again. How well I remember seeing Gen. William Henry Harrison getting out of the old stage coach at Bedford when on his way to Washington and how short the time was that he lived as the president and how soon after his death that "The great jurist," Jeremiah Black, was called upon to deliver the eulogy upon the death of W. H. Harrison in the Presbyterian church I sat in the court room when Rice was tried, convicted and hung at Bedford for the murder of McBirney. (I saw Rice hung) Jeremiah Black was the judge and Job Mann and William Dougherty the associate judges

I remember the Schells, Tom Scott and, indeed, all the people, or their kin, whose names appear in THE BEDFORD GAZETTE. How glad I would be if you and I could visit old Bedford once more and go out to the old Springs, drink once more of its waters, take a walk through its streets (Bedford,) look at the old stone store building where your father and mother spent some years, and where I first handled the yard stick Oh, yes, I could spend a month there and not see one-half of the things that interested me there 65 years ago. Many are the changes since I was a boy. Is Mary McFarland living yet? If she is she must be quite old. I would like to see her, if living, and see if she remembered some of the old times of long ago at Woodbury.

Mrs. Gibson and I attended, at St. Paul, the marriage of our grandson, Robert C. Gibson, of Los Angeles, Cal., to a most lovely young lady of St. Paul, on April 25 last. About 100 were present to witness the marriage. The presents were many and valuable. Mrs. G. and I keep well. We have passed our 54th anniversary. With kindest regards to you, major, and all yours, from Mrs. Gibson and myself, and hoping that we may meet again, I am

Yours truly,

R F GIBSON.

The Red Jacket Medal.

Before the North American colonies revolted it was the British custom to present medals to Indian chiefs with whom treaties were made. These medals bore a figure of the reigning British sovereign on the obverse and emblems of peace on the reverse and were called Indian medals. After the Declaration of Independence Washington presented a United States medal to the Seneca chief, Sa-go-ya-wat-ha (He Keeps Them Awake), who was known popularly as Red Jacket. This Red Jacket medal is interesting as one of the earliest of the medals issued by the first president of the great republic across the sea.—Pearson's Weekly.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys,
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2625 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price. 50 cents per box.

Her Idea of Necessities.

The young man was interviewing the stern parent of the only girl in the world. "Of course, sir," he said, "my salary is not colossal, but I can give her all the necessities of life and some of its luxuries."

"My dear Mr. Softly," replied the stern parent, "you have scarcely improved your time in her society if you do not know that she considers all the luxuries of life far more necessary than the necessities."

To cure a cold when you have no cough—to cure a cough when you have no cold—to cure yourself when you have both—take Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. The new idea, the original and only genuine Laxative cough syrup. Sold by Ed D. Heckerman.

A Deadly Spider.

Papua is the home of a small spider the body of which is about the size of a pea. It is black in color, with a brilliant red spot in the center of the back. It is frequently to be found making its nest in old packing cases which have lain neglected for some time. Unless molested it will not attack. The bite is very small, although fatal in inverse proportion. The chief effect of the virus is that it paralyzes the intestines of the patient and contracts them into knots.

The original is always the best—imitations are cheap. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is the original Laxative Cough Syrup. It is different from all others—it is better than all others, because it cures all coughs and colds and leaves the system stronger than before. The letter B in red is on every package. Sold at Irvine's drug store.

Too Much For Her Memory.

LOVE OF NATURE.

The More Man Loses Out of Door Life the More He Admires It.

The more man has become engaged in the conflicts of civilization, in intellectual disappointment, the more he has felt the uselessness of knowledge, the more he has turned to certain expressions of art as an escape. He has addressed poems to nature, has painted landscape more and more, has shown in every way that such an escape was a dream. Art has existed from the very beginning, even before the first man stuttered out his naming of the animals and expressed their character by the sound of their name. The dances of savages, as we call them—that is to say, of people of earlier forms of civilization—invented before the arts of design, record in a poetic way what they do and the seasons of such doing and even the appearance of nature—the storm, the rain, the clouds blowing across the sky, the lashing of the sea against the shore. In Fiji they have a dance where the women spread out their arms like the wave lines of the surf, and the children, springing up behind them, represent the foam of the wave crests. From these beginnings we know that tragedy and comedy, as we call them, have grown. Then, as all these disappear in fact, they are recorded in the art of painting. And as man more and more leaves behind him a life of out of doors in so much does he desire to admire it.—McClure's Magazine.

THE BUDDHIST HADES.

Eight "Easy Stages" of the Most Awful Kinds of Torture.

The place of torment to which all wicked Buddhists are to be assigned on the day of final reckoning is a terrible place of punishment. This Buddhistic hell is divided into eight "easy stages." In the first the poor victim is compelled to walk for untold ages in his bare feet over hills thickly set with redhot needles, points upward. In the second stage the skin is all carefully filed or rasped from the body and irritating mixtures applied. In the third stage the nails, hair and eyes are plucked out and the denuded body sawed and planed into all sorts of fantastic shapes. The fourth stage is that of "sorrowful Immentations." In the fifth the left side of the body and the denuded head are carefully roasted, Yema, the Buddhistic Satan, superintending the work. In the sixth stage the arms are torn from the body and thrown into an immense vat among the eyes, nails and hair previously removed. Then in plain hearing of the sore footed, blind, maimed, roasted and bleeding victim the whole horrid mass is pounded into a jelly. In the seventh stage the other side of the victim and his feet are roasted brown, and then comes the eighth and last stage, in which the candidate is thrown into the bottomless pit of perdition.

KEEP YOUR HEAD.

How One Woman Lost Her Temper and Her Art Treasures.

Apropos of the woman with the ability to plan a big coup and who then loses it and her head at the last moment an auctioneer in New York tells an interesting story. The woman was an American who had been living abroad with her husband for many years. Upon his death she returned, bringing with her a large collection of valuable paintings which had been his property and which she hoped to sell. She made arrangements with the auctioneer to handle them for her, and he was delighted with the cleverness with which she had obtained vouchers for each one. It showed enterprise and thoroughness seldom found in men or women and made it certain that the pictures, which were really good ones, would bring good prices.

To every one living who had been in any way connected with the pictures, owned them or handled them the woman had gone for a written guarantee, and, in addition to the names obtained in this way, she had been to the American consul, and he in his turn had guaranteed their signatures. They were all sworn to and duly witnessed, and the auctioneer congratulated the woman.

That was all right until Uncle Sam stepped in. The custom house authorities, though unable to obtain possession of the guarantees, appreciated the pictures, estimated them to be worth their full value as understood by the owner and put duties upon them entirely beyond the woman's power to pay. She was greatly distressed at first, then annoyed and finally furiously angry at what she considered an imposition. The auctioneer endeavored to console her.

"They will be sold for little or nothing at the custom house sale," he said, "and the best thing to do is to buy them in. They will go for $10 or $15 apiece, and we will have the sale after all. I will buy them in for you, and we will both make a 'pot of money' out of them."

But by that time the woman was too angry to listen to advice. She considered that she had been badly treated. If the custom house wished to keep her pictures from her, very well, they might have them. She tore up the guarantees, the pictures were sold for next to nothing and scattered no one knows where now and the woman lost a small fortune.—New York Times.

Horsepower.

The difference between nominal, indicated and effective horsepower often puzzles people Nominal horsepower is an assumed quantity, used for the convenience of makers and buyers in describing the dimensions of the engines. Indicated horsepower is the amount shown by computations of the indicator diagram. Effective or actual horsepower is the work an engine can do or the difference between the indicated horsepower and the horsepower required to drive the engine when unloaded.

DON'T BE HYPNOTISED,

Hoodwinked, hoodooed, or over-persuaded into accepting a substitute for Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription with its record of nearly 40 years, embracing hundreds of thousands of cures of woman's peculiar ailments. It's the only remedy for woman's ills sold by druggists, that is not full of "booze"—poor whisky, or bad alcohol.

A guarantee of $1000 is offered that "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, opium or other harmful drug. Keeps in any climate.

"Favorite Prescription" is a powerful invigorating tonic, and imparts strength to the whole system and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to attempt to palm off upon you an alcoholic substitute for this world-famed medicine. You know what you want. It's his business to meet that want. When he urges some substitute he's thinking of the larger profit he'll make—not of your welfare.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain, in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Serge Suits for Men at $7.50, $10.00 and $12.50

These Suits are Two Fifty under price, every one of them. YOUTHS' SUITS at greatly lower figures than a month ago, at $4.50, to fit young men anywhere between the ages of 15 and 20. Extra fine all wool suits for the same youth at $5.90 and $7.50. These ought to be a couple dollars more. And the prices correspond on children's suits, VERY LOW.

Again a new lot of Men's Shirts at 49c; Dress Shirts to be sure. This is the fifth invoice of Men's Dress Shirts this season; values 50, 75, and 89c—all at 49c This accounts for our selling so many shirts.

Low Cut Shoes

Called Oxfords and sandals are here in great variety for Men, Women and Children. Our prices seem very low to what others ask. The quality of our shoes is not to be questioned. They are simply good, and no better anywhere for the price.

Straw Hat Season

Is right at our door. We are prepared with all shapes and qualities to fit all sorts of heads (but no sore heads) Our prices begin at 25c and go to $2.50. Panamas at $4, $6, and $8, such as you paid, last season, double for. The shapes, of course, are different this season but the quality twice as good as last season.

TRUNKS

At Remarkably Low Prices.

Ask the price of one of our trunks. You will hardly believe that such good trunks can be sold so cheap

Do you want to save money? If so come here to do your trading. It will be money in your pocket.

DAME FASHION SAYS SERGE SUITS FOR SUMMER—SO DO WE.

and no doubt you will agree. Don't you think we might also agree on just your fit and on the price you ought to pay? Let's see what you want: Faultlessly correct fashions, garments that have distinctive character, good quality materials, high-class tailoring and fair prices.

We can meet every one of these requirements with which are recognized by men who know as the best ready-to-wear clothes made for the price.

The designers are experts on matters of style, the cutters men of long experience, the needle-workers the best obtainable and the materials have all been scientifically tested for color and thoroughly water-shrunk before using.

Sack Suits in single and double-breasted styles—we make a specialty of the latter in dark blue serge. Coats handsomely lined, with broad shoulders, beautifully modeled lapels, vent in back seam and every other detail of smart custom-tailor work. Trousers full and perfectly setting . . . . . $5 to $20

Summer Outing Suits in fashionable two-piece models. Coats single and double-breasted, full and easy in fit, with athletic shoulders, full chests, close setting collars and quarter-linings for coolness and comfort. Trousers stylishly full, with "turn-up" bottoms and belt loops . . . . . $4.50 to $12

Before leaving look at our Straw Hats and Summer Haberdashery. The chances are you will find exactly what you want in Shirts, Neckwear, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs and Underclothing.

WOMEN WRITERS.

None Among Them Has Ever Attained Real Greatness In Poetry.

Though the quality and range of her genius were deep, generous and wide, Elizabeth Barrett Browning cannot be described, if language is to be used accurately, as occupying a place among the poets justly designated great

In no tongue hitherto has any female writer attained to that supreme position, and were this the appropriate moment, which it is not, it would perhaps be possible to explain why no woman is likely ever to do so Not a few female writers are in effect in the front rank of novelists. But prose-romance is one thing and poetry quite another, and there is a chasm between them; nor does the circumstance of novels being in this age more popular than poetry affect in any degree the inherent and immutable difference Elizabeth Barrett Browning was; "Aurora Leigh" notwithstanding, essentially and almost exclusively a lyrical poet. It would be easy to add almost indefinitely to illustrations of her being one of those who "learn in suffering what they teach in song," not one of the greater poets who pass through that experience but end by getting beyond it—Alfred Austin at Unveiling of a Bust of Mrs Browning

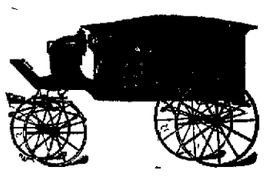
FRED C. PATE



Funeral Director and Embalmer

The last best ministry we can bestow upon our friends after death is to prepare the body for burial with that tender care a mother feels for her helpless first-born The way in which these manifestations of love are expressed to-day is the product and glory of our Christian civilization

I am familiar with the most advanced practice in embalming. My facilities for conducting church funerals are complete I have a car adapted to every need

I will give prompt personal attention to night or day calls, and I promise neatness and good management in the conduct of all this delicate work entrusted to my care

Red, White and Blue Bunting

If you intend to decorate your homes for the 4th of July you'll find many pretty and novel designs in Bunting here at little prices.

White Waists

The demand has been so great for these pretty garments the last few weeks that we've been compelled to duplicate our Spring order. Many numbers were bought at reduced prices—owing to the lateness of the season for the manufacturers. On these Waists we are glad to inform you that you can save twenty-five per cent. These Waists are here in Lawn, Madras and Silk—all white.

Ice Cream Freezers

Good cream is very palatable, especially so during these hot days, if you don't have a good freezer you are handicapped. We claim to have the best make on the market and have known customers to freeze cream in 9 minutes with them.

Parasols and Sun Umbrellas

Some very pretty colored, plain black and white silk Parasols with fancy handles to match at $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00. Some with one and two flounces

A very good line of Sun Umbrellas at $1.00 to $2.00.

You can hardly get along without them, not with any comfort.

Screens for windows, 18 to 30c, according to size.

Doors, complete, 85c, $1.15 and $1.25.

Wire by the yard for doors, 11c.

Paint

We sell the highest grade paint manufactured. B. P. S. is known all over the land for its excellence, its durability and its economy. Only last week a prominent painter of this town calculated for 16 gallons of the ordinary kinds of paint for a house on Spring street. 12 gallons of B. P. S. did the job. The owner was in 4 gallons. The Bedford Springs Co. is a large user of B. P. S. products.

Try Patterson-Sargents' China-Lac for your floors, furniture, &c. All shades, 30c pint.
